MPI Names Jones Supplier of the Year

Meeting Professionals International – Carolinas Chapter, selects Myron Jones as Supplier of the year

Fayetteville – Myron Jones, Director of Sales at the Fayetteville Area Convention & Visitors Bureau, was named Supplier of the Year by Meeting Professionals Int'l - Carolinas Chapter (MPI-CC) at their annual awards and installation gala in Wilmington May 24th.

MPI – CC asked for nominations from their membership in late March. All nominees filled out a questionnaire that was graded by the Awards Committee on an established points system.

The awards are based on: MPI-CC service including International and Chapter participation, industry contributions and community service including membership/involvement in other organizations, articles written in the hospitality press, speaking engagements, awards/professional recognition, professional/career advancement including professional designations, biographical information, job description, and letters of commendation.

Jones submitted 10 Industry contributions, 18 Professional Accomplishments, 3 letters of commendation and 13 quotes from clients pleased with Jones' work. Some of the comments:

- “I wish to commend for an outstanding job in all that you did to make our convention a success,” Nathan C. Bowen, Jr., Special Forces Association Chapter I-XVII Convention Registrar.
- “Thank you so much for taking time from your busy schedule to give a first-class tour of Fayetteville meeting spaces. You provided a wealth of information and I look forward to working with you. “ Angie Streets, Conference Director/Special Events, Ft. Bragg
- “I really enjoyed working with Myron. He is great!” Amanda Donaldson

“I’m so proud of Myron for securing this well-deserved recognition,” says John Meroski, FACVB President and CEO. “Myron is passionate about this community. That, along with his professionalism proves to be a win for greater Fayetteville.”
